

CULTURAL

DIVERSITY

The Multicultural History Society of Ontario celebrates, preserves and documents Ontario's multi-ethnic heritage and culture. The educational programs and publications, exhibits and celebratory events at the Centre enliven the history of the many ethnocultural groups-from First Nations to newcomers-who make this province unique.

READING ROOM

Examine the priceless store of materials documenting the cultural diversity that is Ontario. Browse through our unique archival collections of ethnic newspapers and photographs, which reflects the richness and variety of Canada's immigration history. Listen to oral history recordings from some 70 ethnocultural groups and hear first-hand some of your ancestors and neighbours.

PUBLICATIONS

Delve into our varied publications, including monographs and memoirs. Two or three publications are produced every year, enhancing the more than 60 titles already available.

Our annual newsletter enables members to plan ahead for events. It includes thought-provoking articles related to immigration history, ethnicity and multiculturalism.

EVENTS

Attend special events, including the Chairman's annual breakfast, previews in the Heritage Gallery of Canada's Peoples at the Royal Ontario Museum, and presentations of music, illustrated lectures and displays sponsored by the Society.

EDUCATIONAL

SERVICES

Come move beyond the boundaries of the traditional social studies curriculum to consider the reality and benefits of our country's multiracial, multilingual heritage and culture.

Our traveling slide-show presentations and shared Histories series help students to understand Ontario's role as a preferred target of migration for people from every corner of the globe, and to appreciate Canada's reputation for tolerance of human variety.

EXHIBITS

See how the Centre puts the story back into history through its changing exhibitions by and about Canada's diverse cultural communities.

At the Centre's Robert F. Harney Gallery, you can step into the past or view the present through the eyes of another culture. The exhibits draw on archival resources, art and audio-visual material to tell the story.

Imagining a future ...

Our aim ... a harmonious, unified and prosperous province.

The Multicultural History Society of Ontario is a centre for the interaction of the peoples who live in Ontario. You will become part of a growing number of supporters and volunteers who are working together to advance and promoted the benefits that derive from our diverse cultural heritage.

Our supporters and volunteers received an annual newsletter, advance notice of lectures and symposia, discounts on MHSO publications, and special invitations to events and exhibits at the Society's headquarters and in the Heritage Gallery of Canada's Peoples.
